

Bucuti News & Updates

In this issue, we will continue our journey to introduce you to the sweet aromas, unique landscapes and fresh breezes of Aruba - beyond the beach.

We will acquaint you with Aruba's Arikok National Park and tempt you with the amazing creations at Senses Restaurant. We'll also recommend a visit to the Aruba Aloe Museum and Factory to see where our in-room collection of skin care products is made. Finally, you'll meet our dynamic Chef Ziggy who presents our local cuisine demonstration at Elements as part of our Wellness program.

With peace, love and happiness ... naturally,

The Beauty of Arikok National Park

Enjoy a romantic dip in Aruba's Natural Pool, the discovery of an abandoned palm tree plantation forest and even an encounter with spirited wild goats. Feel the salt air and pure awe while witnessing the white spray of the sea crashing against the black lava north coast. Don't miss the petroglyphs within the Ayo Rock formations, which are monolithic rock boulders located near Ayo village. These are only some of the amazing sights and sounds you will enjoy during a hike in Arikok.

An Experience for All the Culinary Senses

Imagine a five- to eight-course dining experience, meticulously prepared by your chef who is feet away from you foaming and, yes, even torching your dish before your eyes. Your sommelier is pouring a new fine wine carefully paired with every dish, captivating you with an intriguing description à la Robert Parker. Welcome, to Senses Restaurant.

Aruba Aloe

A unique island experience can be found at the Aruba Aloe Museum and Factory. Founded in 1890, Aruba Aloe Balm is the oldest aloe company in the world. It's one of the first companies to formulate and produce aloe-based skin, hair and sun care products. A tour of their facility offers insight into how aloe is harvested and how products are made.

Wellness Profile: Chef Ziggy and His Monday Cooking Demonstration

A guest favorite of our complimentary Wellness activities each week is the cooking demonstration of local cuisine presented by Chef Ziggy, or formally, Chef Zychiel Reynaldo Garcia Pantophlet. Lively and spirited, Chef Ziggy draws laughs and smiles during his entertaining presentation every Monday.
